This country sometimes furnishes interesting scandals, but not often can we rake up anything as disgustingly filthy as the evidence in the Lord and Lady Colin Campbell divorce suit. For the present England wears the belt.

Some talk has been occasioned by certain Governors omitting any mention of God in their Thanksgiving proclamations, but Iteland, of Texas, goes them all one better by purposely forgetting to mention G. Cleveland, Esq., of "ghoulish glee" fame.

The Gazette says it doesn't believe in Civil Service. Of course not; but then it didn't blow that way about it before G. Cleveland, Esq., became President.

Was Cleveland Born in 1686?

It is evident from an article which is published in the current number of Harper's Weekly that the editor of that paper is laboring under the impression that it was the two-hundred-and-fiftieth anniversary of the founding of Grover Cleveland that was celebrated at Cambridge, Mass., last week. The editor of the Weekly ought to know what he was talking about, for he was one of the HARPER'S YOUNG PEOPLE. guests of this occasion. Still there are thousands of people who were led to believe that the anniversary was not Cleveland's, but the university's. If it should turn out on investigation that they were correct, the Weekly will be placed in an embarrassing position.
